

MELKSHAM,

WITH THE CHAPELRY OF SEMINGTON AND NEIGHBOURHOOD.

MELKSHAM is a market town and parish, in the hundred of its name; 96 miles w. by s. from London, 30 n. w. from Salisbury, 12 E. from Bath, between 6 and 7 s. from Chippenham, and 5 s. s. E. from Corsham—the three last named places are stations on the Great Western Railway. The town lies on the main road between Bath and the metropolis, on the banks of the Avon; and consists principally of one street nearly a mile in length, paved and gas-lighted. The houses are in general good, and built of free-stone. Its name is derived from melch or milch, 'milk,' and ham, 'a dwelling,' and was formerly spelt Millnsham and Milsham. The lower part of the town is denominated 'the city,' a presumptive proof of its ancient superiority; and this is farther confirmed by the tailage it paid in the reign of King John, which amounted to twelve marks—Salisbury paying only forty shillings. Two mineral springs, one saline, the other chalybeate, were discovered in the vicinity some years ago, and in 1816, a new saline spa was obtained by boring: from this period it was anticipated that Melksham would advance into note as a watering place, and every accommodation for visitors was provided, including a pump-room, a handsome crescent, an agreeable promenade, a reading-room and a library, but, with all these inducements, success was not commanded, and a very considerable outlay has been made without a return. The manufactures comprise superfine broad-cloths, and flat and round ropes; there is also some business done in malting. A petty sessions, for the division of Melksham, is held here, by the justices of the peace for the county, on the last Wednesday in every month; a court leet is held half yearly by Walter Long, esq. the lord of the manor; and a court of requests, for the recovery of debts under £5, every third Tuesday, at one of the principal inns. Melksham is a polling station at elections for North Wilts.

The parish church of St. Michael, is a large and spacious cruciform edifice, built of freestone, with a handsome embattled tower rising from the transept: the living is a vicarage, in the patronage of the dean and chapter of Salisbury cathedral: the present vicar is the Rev. George Hume. The Baptists, Independents, Wesleyan Methodists, and the Society of Friends have places of worship here. There are British, national, and infants' schools; and a 'provident district society,' for relief of the sick, the aged, and the infirm poor. The Melksham union comprises six parishes—the poor-house is a substantial stone building, situated near the pleasant village of Semington. The scenery, within the circuit of a few miles round Melksham, is very beautiful; there are several elegant seats, and the walks on the banks of the Avon are remarkably pleasant. A market is held every alternate Monday, which is well attended, and an annual fair on the 27th of July, both chiefly for cattle. The parish of Melksham (including the chapelry of SEEND) contained, in 1831, 5,866 inhabitants, and at the last census (1841) 6,234.

Three miles from Melksham, and the like distance from Trowbridge, situated on the road between the two towns, is the chapelry of SEMINGTON, in the parish of Steeple-Ashton. There is a place of worship for Wesleyan Methodists in the village, and near the latter is the Union Workhouse before mentioned. The chapelry contains about 350 inhabitants.

MERE

IS an inconsiderable market town, in the parish and hundred of its name; 102 miles w. s. w. from London, 22 w. from Salisbury, and 7 n. n. w. from Shaftesbury (Dorset), the like distance west from Hindon, and 10 s. from Warminster; situated on the high road from Salisbury and Amesbury to Wincanton. The principal manufacture is that of dowlas and bed-ticking; there is likewise a silk-throwing mill. The magisterial business of the town is transacted at Hindon.

The parish church of St. Michael is a spacious and handsome structure, with a tower. The screen, which separates the nave from the chancel, is rich open work, and the belfry has a beautiful carved oak ceiling. The living is a vicarage, in the patronage of the dean of Salisbury, and incumbency of the Rev. Henry Wake:

the Rev. Thomas Blundell is his present curate. There is a place of worship for Independents. An endowment, left by Dr. Tateham, of £10. per annum, is appropriated to the education of poor children. In 1840 a national school was established; and the premises, a neat stone structure, erected by voluntary contributions. The Union Workhouse is a handsome building, constructed of the like material, and is for the reception of the poor of twelve parishes. The Duke of Somerset's seat 'Bradley,' and 'Zeals' house,' that of — Grove, Esq. are the principal objects of attraction in the vicinity. The market is entitled to be held on Tuesday, but few persons avail themselves of the privilege of attending it. Fairs, May 17th and October 10th, for corn and cattle. The population of the parish is about 3,000.

POST OFFICE, Samuel Hayter, Post Master.—Letters from all parts arrive every morning at eight, and are despatched every afternoon at half-past five.
